

Miss Me But Let Me Go...

*When I came to the end of the road
And the sun has set for me
I want no rites in a gloom filled room
Why cry for a soul set free.
Miss me a little—but do not too long
And not with your head bowed low
Remember the love that we once shared
Miss me but let me go.
For this is a journey that
We all must take
And each must go alone
It's all a part of the Master's plan
A step on the road home.
When you are lonely and sick of heart
Go to the friends we know.
And burry your sorrow in
Doing good deeds
Miss me but let me go*

His Life Story

James Lee Perry was born on January 12, 1937, in Coffee County, Georgia. He was cherished by 2 families: the late Earlie V. White, who brought him into the world and his parents the late Tommy and Alberta Perry through adoption who lovingly walked beside him throughout his life.

He graduated from Carver High School in Douglas, Georgia in 1954, he enlisted in the United States Army as a paratrooper. During his four years of honorable service, he was stationed in Germany and Panama. After completing his military service, James began a long and dedicated career with the Pontiac Housing Commission, where he worked until his retirement in 1992. He was deeply committed to serving his community, both in Pontiac, Michigan, and in Douglas, Georgia. Upon relocating to Douglas, he became a devoted member of Gaines Chapel AME Church, where he served faithfully until his passing.

James was a loving and dependable father and grandfather. He found joy in spending time with his family, playing cards, and watching sports. His kindness, generosity, and unwavering love for his family were evident in all he did.

James married his high school sweetheart, Annie Smith. From this union, five children were born: Sharon Goodwin, Kim (Bishop George) Sims, Terrance Perry, Karen Perry, and Angela Martin.

James was preceded in death by his sisters Rosemary Gunter, Margie Wormley, and Joann Gunter; his son-in-law Jeffrey Martin; six brothers-in-law; and five sisters-in-law.

He is also survived by his children James Christopher Perry and Joyce Roe; sisters Sarah (Jerome) Gunter-Lawrence and Bobbie (Robert) Gunter-Pitts; nine grandchildren: Micah (Elizabeth) Russell, Rashad Perry, Jasmine Perry, Terrance Perry, Kristen (Lonell) Carr, Maya Oliver, Micah Oliver, Lauren Perry-Sims, and Karoline Perry-Sims; 23 great-grandchildren; 4 great-great-grandchildren; and a host of nieces, nephews, and cherished friends. His legacy of love, service, and devotion will live on in the hearts of all who knew him.
