

Aunt

An aunt's warm love, a guiding hand,
A heart that knew, a voice that spanned.
A smile that soothed, a laugh that stayed,
A light whose memory will not fade.

In every kindness that you give,
Her spirit finds a way to live.
In whispered dreams and gentle skies,
Her love still shines, it never dies.

May cherished moments bring you peace,
And help your aching heart find ease.
Though far beyond where eyes can see,
Her love remains, eternally.

Benediction

With broken hearts, we announce the passing of Jasmayne D. Suggs, a loving mother whose life centered around the two children she adored more than anything in this world, her son, Kamden McCoy. Sailem, and her daughter, Kennedy Jade Sailem.

Jasmayne was not only a mother — she was protector, provider, comforter, teacher, and best friend to all who knew her. Every sacrifice she made was for her children. Every long day, every sleepless night, every prayer, and every dream she carried was rooted in the love she had for them.

She faced life with courage and determination, carrying responsibilities that many could never fully understand. Even during difficult times, she found ways to smile, to encourage others, and to make sure her children felt loved, safe, and important. Her love was deep, unconditional, and unwavering.

To know her was to know strength wrapped in kindness. She had a beautiful spirit that could brighten a room, a heart that gave without asking for anything in return, and a love that will never fade, even in death.

She was also deeply appreciated by her coworkers at CoreCivic, who knew her as hardworking, dependable, and compassionate. She brought warmth and encouragement into the workplace, and many considered her more than a coworker — she was a true friend whose presence made difficult days easier and joyful moments brighter.

Her children were the greatest joy of her life. She spoke of them with pride, loved them with every part of her being, and worked endlessly to build a better future for them. The bond they shared can never be broken, not even by death.

She leaves behind her beloved son, Kamden McCoy Sailem, and daughter, Kennedy Jade Sailem, a mother, Linda S. Outlaw-Fuller, a step-father, William L. Fuller, a sister, Cortney L. Suggs, a father, Christopher Suggs, a niece, Raylen Camille Bryant and a nephew, Kaysen C. Suggs who now carry her love, lessons, and memory in their hearts forever. She also leaves behind grieving family members, devoted friends, and coworkers whose lives were touched by her kindness, resilience, and caring spirit.

While words cannot fully express the pain of losing her, they also cannot fully express the beauty of the life she lived and the love she gave so freely. Her memory will live on in every lesson she taught, every laugh shared, every hug remembered, and in the lives of the two children she loved beyond measure.

She may be gone from our sight, but she will never be gone from our hearts.
