LIFE REFLECTIONS

John Willie Sims Jr. was born on October 1, 1959, in McRae, Georgia, to the late John Willie Sims Sr. and Stella McCrimmon. He shared an unbreakable bond with his mother, whose love, strength, and guidance remained a constant source of comfort and inspiration throughout his life. He was also deeply influenced and supported by his loving uncle, Freddie (Priscilla) McCrimmon, who poured into him and helped guide him through his high school years. He peacefully departed this life on Monday morning, February 16, 2026

John received his high school diploma, proudly served in the military, and later continued his education, becoming an exceptional electrician known for his skill, dedication, and strong work ethic.

Throughout his life, John touched countless lives while working from city to city. He had a warm spirit and never met a stranger, leaving a lasting impression on everyone he encountered. If you ever saw John stepping out, you already knew he would be dressed sharp in a good ole two-piece set — a true reflection of the pride he carried in himself wherever he went.

He was preceded in death by his sisters, Gynetha Wooten and Virginia Wooten. John leaves to cherish his loving memory three sisters: Martha Bell (James) Brown, Cynthia (Kentice) Brockington, and Sandra Jean Wooten, all of Douglas, Georgia; two brothers: Terry (Eneida) Sims of Montgomery, Alabama, and Leroy Wooten of Douglas, Georgia. Although John had no biological children, he was a devoted uncle who loved deeply and poured into the lives of his nine nieces and seven nephews. His nieces, in particular, held a special place in his heart, and he shared an unbreakable bond with them — offering guidance, protection, laughter, and unconditional love throughout their lives. He also leaves behind a host of great-nieces and great-nephews, and bonus son, Jamarkus Williams who will continue to honor his legacy.

Whether you knew him as Slim, John Boy, Unc, or Hot Sauce, he remained the same loving, genuine person every time.

John's legacy of love, strength, laughter, and kindness will forever live on in the hearts of all who knew and loved him.
